

Record Turn-Out Of Voters Helps Sweep Democrats Into Office

By ANNE HULL

Greenbelt Democrats last Tuesday turned out in a 3 to 1 proportion over Republicans and Independents to sweep their party's candidates into office. 322 Democrats, 86 Republicans, and 25 Independents cast their ballots, breaking all previous local records. The total of 433 represents a probable two-thirds plus of the electorate, as out of the 750 names registered in the books, election officer James Wolfe estimates that 150 are "dead wood" (i. e. moved away). Mr. Wolfe reported that 200 persons who do not intend to be left out of the voting next time have applied for "Declaration of Intent" forms.

Of all voting precincts in Prince Georges, Precinct No. 3 of the 21st District, which is Greenbelt, is credited with having the strongest proportion of Democrats. In 1940 Greenbelt carried the 21st District and the county for President Roosevelt.

Up All Night

Greenbelters who spent all election day and night in the firehouse, nourished by coffee and light snacks at intervals were: for the Republicans, Mrs. John Walker, registration officer; Mrs. Lou Elliot, clerk; Fordyce Meriam, judge; for the Democrats, James Wolfe, registration officer; Mrs. Oscar Zoellner, clerk; Mrs. D. J. Neff, judge. Robert Dove represented the Republican State Central Committee, Woodrow Page, the Democratic Central Committee. They reported two local write-in candidates: Ralph Miller for county surveyor and Wells Harrington for register of wills. Their names were reported with the official counts sent to Upper Marlboro.

The county officials elected have four-year terms and assume office January 1. Meeting every Tuesday, three members of the new official governing body for Prince Georges are nearby residents: John Beall, Mt. Rainier; William Carson, Riverdale, and Harry McNamee, Berwyn. Norman Collins lives in Forestville; D. Leonard Dyer is from Accocek.

The new commissioners will face problems such as welfare and public health work, school and road improvement, how to deal with juvenile delinquency in the absence of a juvenile court system.

William R. Smith of 20-K Ridge Road, has been appointed assistant clerk for the board of commissioners.

Doctor in The House

The newly-elected House of Delegates will study a report by the Sherbow commission which recommends a different method of taxing and allocating the funds, and an increase of representation in proportion to population. Delegates have 4-year terms and meet every other year for a 90-day session in the months of January, February and March.

As in the case of the county commissioners, the majority of new members live nearby: Mr. Burch, Berwyn; George McLeish, Chevy Chase; Dr. Napoleon Steward, practicing surgeon, Laurel, and Perry

Wilkinson, Hyattsville. William McGrath lives in Seat Pleasant, Leroy Pumphrey is a lawyer-farmer near Marlboro. Mr. Burch's daughter, Mrs. Carl Baranek, lives at 4-B Plateau Place.

Negro Candidates

Two negro candidates were on the ballot: Philip F. Brooks, Rep., for the board of county commissioners, and Presley Jay Newmaker, Rep., for the House of Delegates. Brooks trailed in the commissioners election; Newmaker placed fourth from the bottom in the House of Delegates.

54-A Crescent Road New Health Office

The housing shortage is responsible for plans to move Greenbelt's Public Health office from its present quarters on Gardenway to a new office at 54-A Crescent Road.

Town Manager James T. Gobbel announced the change last week. The new office, a ground-floor apartment will be occupied next Monday. The former office will be used as a three-bedroom dwelling unit.

Manager Gobbel also reported that work on the playground at the North End school has been progressing. Recent rainy weather temporarily halted work with the bulldozer. Improved play facilities in the area opposite 73 Ridge Road will soon be available, Mr. Gobbel stated.

AVC Considers Meeting Place

The next regular meeting of the Greenbelt Chapter of the American Veterans' Committee will be held on Wednesday, November 13, at 8:30 p.m. in the social room of the center school.

Among the subjects on the agenda are a proposed change in the meeting dates, and the problem of a permanent location for the AVC. A series of talks is planned on subjects of current interest which the local Chapter will sponsor. The first of these, on November 20, will be open to all who are interested.

At a meeting of the Maryland Chapter of the AVC held in Baltimore on Sunday, October 27, Bill Miller, local chairman, was elected secretary of the state organization.

News Deadline!

Beginning next week all news stories and reports of meetings or social affairs occurring up to and including the preceding Sunday night must be in the Co-operator office, 8 Parkway, by 10 p.m., or left in the news box at the tobacco store by 8 p.m., Monday night. Greenbelt organizations were notified by letter this week that all stories of such happenings sent in after that time will run the risk of being cut from the paper the following Friday. The Co-operator office will be open both Monday and Tuesday nights from now on.

Dr. McCarl Heads GCS Stock Drive

Dr. James McCarl will head the committee to raise a fund for the erection of the new super market in the Center, GCS president, D. W. Hull, announced this week. The drive is scheduled to take place the last week of November and the first week of December.

Public Relations Director Trast states that stock is being sold at the rate of between $3,000 and $4,000 a month.

Journalists Jive!

Fried chicken with all the trimmings highlighted the annual "Co-operator" staff party last Saturday night at the home of the Don Romers, 73-T Ridge Road. Some 32 guests—16 staff members, plus husbands or wives—crowded the Romers' hospitable home from 8:30 p.m. on.

Guests filling and refilling their plates and glasses agreed that hostess Donna well deserved the title of "hostess of the year." Charlotte Walsh and Gerry Backstrom assisted in the preparation of the dinner. Sid Spindel and Don Romer proved capable and convincing bar-tenders. Music for dancing varied all the way from "Stone Cold Dead in the Market" to "Brazil," with all guests in an appreciative and congenial mood.

Morning-after opinion declared a vote of thanks to Mrs. Romer and her assistants, and decided in favor of more "Co-operator" parties, more often.

Police Invited To Necktie Party

A hanging took place in the garage at 9 Ridge Road on Halloween night, and the "Greenbelt Madonna" in the Center got two doses of paint. The soap shortage didn't interfere with window marking; candle wax proved just as effective. The two grade schools each staged costume parades in the afternoon, while parties and pranks were the order of the evening.

Most victimized by the hoax at 9 Ridge was a resident coming home late from work. He was met by a frantic delegation of grown-ups who sent him flying to the police station to report a hanging. It was a thoroughly shaken individual who told Buddy Attick about the dark form he had glimpsed in one of the garage spaces. The cops cracked the case, Buddy claims, when they saw people hiding behind the parked cars as they drove up to investigate. The adult perpetrators confessed they had felt like getting in some Halloween fun, too, after watching the capers cut by their youngsters.

The "Madonna" in the Center got two baptisms of paint. The first layer, of water color, was rinsed off under the eyes of the police by the high school girls who applied it. The second layer, of a more durable variety, was sloshed on by a group of boys later on Halloween night.

For the first time on Halloween, paint was used on the sidewalks.

Lack Of Quorum At Last Meeting Invalidates GCS Board Elections

The election of four directors at the last quarterly meeting of Greenbelt Consumers Services has been declared invalid, and all business transacted at this meeting null and void, the GCS board decided last Friday, after heated debate.

Since lack of quorum was not questioned by the 150 members who attended the September gathering, Chairman Dayton Hull, supported by Frank Lastner, argued that the proceedings were in order. Carnie Harper emphasized that there should be no question of the legality of the stock drive planned to finance the new store. The remaining directors agreed with Mrs. Harper that the legal quorum of 200 should vote on whether to double the amount of non-voting stock; even though this motion was unanimously carried by the 150 members at the September meeting.

In an all-out effort to secure a quorum at the next quarterly meeting on December 2, the board has decided to offer "ten boxes of soap and a turkey" as door prizes, and one of the principal items members will be asked to vote on will be a provision reducing the quorum from 10 to 5 per cent.

Until the question of upping the stock ceiling can also be voted on at this meeting, the board has authorized the General Manager to get loan capital on a short-term basis.

The invalidation of the election means that the former board of directors will hold office until the December meeting. Actually this will have no immediate effect on the personnel of the 9-man group that meets bi-weekly to determine the Co-op's business policies, since of the four directors elected in September, three (Eshbaugh, Volckhausen, Harper) were running for re-election, while the fourth, David Granahan, has been "appointed" by the board to take the place of Fordyce Meriam, who has "resigned" the position which the invalidated election gave back to him.

Eshbaugh, Harper, and Granahan will again run for directorships in December. Mr. Volckhausen, however, will not be a candidate because of his new position as executive secretary of the Potomac Cooperative Federation.

Nomination blanks will be mailed ten days before the meeting so that GCS members may make further nominations.

Community Chest Deadline Sunday

Sunday is the deadline for Community Chest block captains to turn in cash and pledges to Mrs. F. J. McConnell, campaign chairman.

Contributions as of Tuesday of this week approximated $300 with the police department, the town office and a number of blocks still to report.

Mrs. McConnell urges everyone who has not contributed to do so by this Sunday.

No High School Bus Until March

The town has just been notified that a school bus promised for delivery by November 1 will not be available until next March.

This long-standing need of Greenbelt's high school pupils for adequate transportation will be brought to the attention of the county school board and its supervisor, Town Manager James T. Gobbel declared last week. The school at Edmonston Road has been serviced by a make-shift bus provided by the town, in lieu of a county-provided bus service.

Mr. Gobbel intends to outline to Superintendent G. Gardner Shugart of the county school board the school and bus situation in general, stressing the importance of Greenbelt's financial contribution to the county government.

Express Offers Local Service

The Railway Express Agency has offered Greenbelt local service, according to George L. Frank, Chairman of the Citizens Association's Transportation Committee.

Mr. Frank, who filed a petition with Railway Express two months ago, said the Greenbelt Consumers Service is currently considering the offer, which would entail the use of its truck, which at present picks up GCS Railway Express packages at Berwyn, to pick up all packages addressed to Greenbelt residents.

Details as to financing the service will be worked out when and if GCS acceptance is decided upon, said Mr. Frank, adding that further information and discussion of the project is expected at the next Citizens' Association meeting.

Armistice Hop

The annual Armistice Day Dance, sponsored by the local Legion Post No. 136, will be held Saturday night, November 9, at the center school auditorium. Dancing to music by E. Bradley Clay and his orchestra will start at 10 p.m.

Four Town Groups Vie For Basement

At least four Greenbelt organizations have applied for the basement space below the firehouse soon to be vacated by the Drop-In upon completion of the youth center, according to Community Manager, Charles M. Cormack.

Greenbelt Consumer Services would like to rent it for storage purposes and the Boy Scouts, fire department and theatre group have requested the space for meetings and social events.

The basement has never been leased to the Town since it was made available to the teen-agers, it was revealed at Monday's council meeting, and therefore decision for its future use rests solely with the landlord, FPHA.

The Council urged favorable consideration of the fire department's application, stressing that the volunteer firemen have no place for meetings or social events and that their importance to the safety of the community justifies a high priority for the space.

If The Shoe Fits

The letter addressed to the Editor by residents in the 11 Ridge Road Court was signed by twenty families in that court, some of whom had suffered as much as $75 damage to their automobiles at the hands of young vandals. Lurid tales of sand and stones being thrown into gas tanks of cars are filtering down from the North End. The reactions of Greenbelt citizens and the Community Manager to certain aspects of our Hallowe'en celebration can be found in other columns of the paper today.

In the past the Cooperator has soft-pedaled stories of petty thefts, grand-scale robberies and general acts of mischief, when performed by Greenbelt teen-agers. We have hesitated to brand the youthful wrong-doers whose parents must of necessity continue to reside in our small community with the name of "juvenile delinquents." However, the petty and grand larceny has continued, and the punishment meted out by the Magistrate's Court in Hyattsville has in many cases not fit the crime.

The Greenbelt Elementary P-TA has given us an opportunity to evaluate the work done by the Montgomery Juvenile Court in solving the problem of juvenile delinquency. The Youth Center, built with community funds, is another attempt at solution by siphoning off the excess energy which so often leads to youthful indiscretions. But despite these valuable community aids, the basic responsibility for the education and training of our young citizens lies in the hands of their parents. "I can't do anything with Johnny," is not an excuse for our childrens' deeds, but an indictment of our homes.

To The Editor

Because of the lack of space in the Cooperator at the present time, all letters addressed to the Editor must be limited to 150 words. Letters which contain more than 150 words will be subject to editorial revision and condensation. All letters must bear the written signature of the writer, though pen names or initials will be used at the writer's request.

Horrore'en?

To the Editor:
Hallowe'en in Greenbelt was a great disappointment. I saw no jack-o-lanterns when pumpkin' season was on in full blast and they should have lit up the whole town and provided fun and beauty for everybody in the old time way.
Instead, I saw evidence of mass vandalism, with green paint splashed on the white walls of houses and buildings, the halls of apartment houses littered with shredded newspaper, and even lids of mail-boxes torn from their hinges, and am therefore wondering if what we experienced in Greenbelt was "Horrore'en" and not "Hallowe'en." Signs painted on the sidewalks which read "Kilroy Here," should have been scrubbed off the next day by whoever wrote them with plenty of soap, water, and scouring powder, and with the assistance of the Police Department. Bus windows should likewise have been "de-soaped" by whatever youngster did the original soaping. Having fun yourself does not mean giving other people trouble, and parents should call a halt on this. It is not smart but stupid, to pull down a trolley wire or soap streetcar tracks. People of privilege don't do things like this, and that is the way Greenbelters ought to thing of themselves, with their fresh air, beautiful surroundings, and good living quarters.

Why not a jack-o-lanterns competition next year for real fun and artistry?

—MARGARET BEAUFORT.

Artist Objects

To the Editor:
I was shocked to see the statue at the center so violated. Hallowe'en, really! Can we seriously condone any type of lawlessness with the front of traditional ceremony? Or is our latest intolerance and wantonness released on such occasions of pagan celebration. Are we so devoid of community interest and civilized behaviour that we shamelessly indulge this hoodlumism?

Of all the cases of theft and destruction that I saw this Hallowe'en, the paint-smeared statue stands as the worst example of all. I know there is much criticism of the statue as a piece of art. This being a field in which I am slightly familiar, I can vouch for the statue's esthetic adequacy. And from experience, I don't believe that a substitution would represent any cultural improvement.

The large bold mother and child represent a symbol of our town. It is the goodness and peacefulness, the simple grace and strength that is our town. It is the many, many things that our community represents, and that so many outsiders and some dissident residents do not like. It has overlooked our town for many years with its promise, its fertility and benevolence. In despoiling it we have shamed ourselves.

Enough Power

To the Editor:
Last week the Cooperator stated that the mayor objected to the town charter on the ground that no provision is made therein for recourse to higher authority if a town employee is discharged by the town manager. The town charter vests sole and absolute authority to hire and fire town employees in the town manager and specifically provides that the decision of the town manager in removing an employee shall be final and there shall be no appeal therefrom to any other office, body, or court whatsoever. It also prohibits the town council from taking part in any manner in the appointment or removal of officers or employees of the town. However, the town manager is responsible to the town council for the PROPER administration of ALL town affairs placed in his charge. Subject only to the requirement of a thirty-day notice in the form of a resolution stating the council's intention to remove the town manager with the reasons therefor, and a public hearing at the option of the town manager, the town council may remove the town manager, with or without cause. The action of the town council in removing the town manager shall be final.

While the town council has no direct authority with respect to the dismissal of town employees—other than that exercised through its power over the purse—there is nothing in the town charter to prevent the town council from conducting an inquiry into the action of the town manager in dismissing an employee to determine whether he PROPERLY conducted the affairs of the town in that respect. By its power to conduct an inquiry into the conduct of any office or officer of the town and its power to remove the town manager himself, the town council can penalize and possibly prevent the unwarranted dismissal of town employees. Thus there may be available to the town council an effective measure of control over the personnel policies of the town government and a restraining check upon arbitrary or capricious action by the town manager. If the town council in the face of a suspected unjustifiable dismissal of a town employee fails to take affirmative action to make the town manager account for such suspected misdeed, it fails in its duty to the town employees and to the people. Notwithstanding the council's powers of indirect intervention in personnel matters, the town employees, like other employees in government and industry, should be accorded some direct measure of protection, such as a right to a hearing before a body with power to reverse the dismissal action of the town manager, and an amendment to the charter is therefore desirable. Whether the town council is the proper appellate body is open to question.

In the absence of such a change in the charter, it is submitted that a fair-minded town manager should be willing voluntarily to submit the matter of removal of an employee to an arbitrator acceptable to both parties. If the town manager could establish with clear and convincing evidence that the dismissal was justified, a competent arbitrator would uphold the dismissal action; if the arbitrator found that the dismissal was not justified, the town manager could not reasonably object to reinstating the employee. Moreover, if the dismissal was justified, the discharged employee probably would not seek arbitration of the issue, but if he nevertheless persisted in his demand for arbitration, the town manager could present his evidence with confidence of being sustained in his action.

The Homemaker

By JUNE WILBUR

There are crafts in which even three-and four-year-olds can participate. They are good for rainy day activities and for Christmas projects as well. If mother will save a set of cans, little Sally can make a lovely toy of fit-in cans. The set should include at least four and should be graduated in size around but similar in height. For example, take a large fruit can (not the giant size), a vegetable can, a spaghetti can, a mushroom can and perhaps a baby food can. With the tops cut out so there are no rough edges or sharp points, start the youngsters right to work washing and drying the cans. If it's Sally's and Johnnie's project all the way through they'll love it more and keep busy longer.

There's no need to paint the cans, the shiny tin surface is a most acceptable color. A little aid might be rendered in scrubbing off the glue which held the label on. A short explanation while the cans finish drying is all that is necessary before turning the young hopefuls loose with four or five cans and five or ten decals in gay, children's designs. If decals are not available, pictures cut from greeting cards and a bottle of glue will work as well.

The object to be carried out of wetting or glueing and placing the design right side up on the cans is easily accomplished. The result is a highly prized toy to be used for containing things, for fitting inside of one another, for stacking on top of one another, or arranging in a line.

It's fairly certain that any child who accomplishes such a feat will be most proud, both of exhibiting the toy and of playing with it.

Another make-it-yourself idea for this age group is a simple candle-holder for use at birthdays or special parties. The holders can be made by having the youngsters paste or glue two milk bottle tops together. Then with a fairly large nail and a hammer a hole can be made reasonably near the center of the caps, large enough to hold a birthday cake size candle. Since the bottle caps are usually white, a bright red or green candle will look very gay.

These of course should be used for decoration and not as a plaything when candles are lighted.

The Turntable

By DEE FAIRCHILD
Phone 4562

Now that phonograph and radio combinations are more plentiful, many people buffeted about by war schedules and restrictions are collecting records for the first time. Here are a few do's and don'ts for their consideration.

Don't go on a record binge, though the desire to possess discs consumes you like a fever first. Restrict your buying to one or two albums at a time.

Don't buy albums with more than five records until your collection reaches the hundred mark. Don't get stuck with a manual album if you have a record changer or expect to get one.

Do buy some conversation music. You will find some of your friends are not as musically minded as yourself and will interrupt Toscanini and the whole New York Philharmonic orchestra doing Beethoven to tell you what little Eggbert did or said.

Do listen to albums in homes of friends. It is a comfortable, pleasant way to make your initial selections.

Do listen to the radio and jot down names you would like to hear again.

Do buy and study Victor and Columbia catalogs and other companies if you can get them.

Do make a place for your records away from radiators, dampness, Junior, and upset cocktail glasses.

Do handle your platters lovingly, dust them with a soft bristle brush or felt pad, keep them in envelopes or albums, and vertical.

Do play every side before you buy, as imperfections show up this way quicker than by observation of an untrained eye.

Don't miss the article in the October Fortune if you are interested in better music reception and combos that start at two hundred and up. It is full of interesting information and comparisons of so-called quality sets.

We're Sorry!

Our apologies to those Greenbelters who were inconvenienced by the story in last week's Co-operator giving the time for the Prince Georges County Celebration Parade as 1 p.m., instead of 12:30 p.m. Our information was based on an authoritative story in one of Washington's leading newspapers, which stated the day before the parade, that the time had been changed to 1 p.m.

However, all's well that ends well, as the parade actually left the College Park area at 1:30 p.m., one hour late.

Services Held Mon. For Mrs. McCauley

Funeral services were held Monday at Charlottesville, Virginia, for Mrs. Eleanor McCauley, 63, a resident of Greenbelt for eight years. She is survived by three sons and two daughters, one of whom is Mrs. Harry Attick, of 7-B Ridge Road. Mrs. McCauley served the community as dietician of the Greenbelt Hospital, when it was in operation and as dietician at the Child Care Center. She attended the Berwyn Baptist Church.

Byers Health Talk

Dr. John Byers, Prince Georges County health officer, will address the high school P-TA next Tuesday night, November 12, at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium, on "The Facilities of the Health Department for Examining Youth."

Abe Zeldin, high school physical education instructor, will discuss this year's plans for the high school in its relation to the county physical education program. Dr. and Mrs. Paul C. Underwood, co-chairmen of the health program committee, will speak on their activities.

Refreshments will be served at the close of the evening.

Co-op Summer Camp

Permanent arrangements for cooperative summer camps in the Potomac area are the goal of a new group, organized in Washington on October 30, by cooperators from Maryland, Virginia and the District. Since the one- and two-week camp sessions on Chesapeake Bay have impressed the campers as a pleasant and economical means of spending their vacations, the group will endeavor to provide facilities for many more families than has been possible in previous years. Several possible camp locations have been suggested by preliminary investigations, although temporary quarters may be obtained for next summer whether or not a permanent location is chosen immediately.

Included in the nine-man committee elected at the meeting were Greenbelters Merton Trast and Walter Volckhausen. A five-dollar application fee from those seeking membership in the group will provide operating funds. Information on the project may be secured from the Potomac Co-operative Federation at REpublic 1078.

Parents Warned Of Diseased Goats

Parents of youngsters playing at the far end of Ridge Road should keep their children from trespassing on Beltsville property, adult education director, Mary Jane Kinzer, warned on Tuesday. Early teen-age boys and younger boys have been chasing various animals, including some goats which are the offspring of a herd afflicted with brucellosis, a disease which causes undulant fever in human beings. The area is fenced in, and should not be used as a playground.

Would You Like A Swinging Leg?

Greenbelters who own "Greenbelt furniture" will be interested to know that the FPFA office will give a "swinging leg" for a Greenbelt dining-room table to any resident who needs one.

About 100 of these legs are available in the warehouse in the maintenance building, FPFA manager Charles M. Cormack announced last week. The management is disposing of them and anyone who wishes one must contact Noble Anderson, procurement officer for Greenbelt, at the maintenance building, between 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Prankster's Dads Must Pay Piper

Commenting on the Hallowe'en vandalism, Community Manager Charles M. Cormack said, "The widespread damage to Government property which occurred during the Hallowe'en festivities is a matter of deep regret to me. In Greenbelt, where every effort has been made to provide the utmost in recreational facilities, it would appear that there is a definite lack of appreciation of the advantages of this community on the part of some of the young people. How much of this attitude is due to carelessness or lack of instruction by parents, churches and schools is a matter on which opinions may differ. I feel strongly, however, that increased attention must be paid to training and good citizenship and in the respect for the property of others if Greenbelt is to avoid lowering its standards as a model community."

"As far as the policy of the management is concerned, my duty is clear. In any case of deliberate damage to Government property I am required to insist upon reimbursement in full for the cost of restoring the property to its original condition. The boys responsible for defacing the statue in the community center were apprehended by the Police Department. I have communicated with their parents and shall insist upon the thorough cleaning of the statue by a competent contractor which probably will involve considerable expense and will require the parents of the boys concerned to pay all costs in connection with such cleaning."

Woman's Club Meets

The last meeting of the Woman's Club, at the home of the arts chairman, Mrs. Leland Love, heard Mrs. Frank Shea stress the value of art instruction as a part of a daily school program, where the child learns through applying artistic methods. Mrs. Everett D. Fairchild, whose cartoon are featured in "Ladies Home Journal," "American," "Seventeen," and other magazines, showed by exhibiting samples of her drawings in various stages how a cartoonist goes about her work.

The next meeting of the club on November 7 was held at the home of Mrs. Lloyd L. Nelson. Dean S. S. Steinberg of the University of Maryland spoke on "Our Latin American Neighbors."

Scouts Celebrate

Greenbelt Girl Scouts and Brownies held Hallowe'en parties last week.

Shirley Levine, leader of Troop No. 35, combined a surprise party with the troop's Hallowe'en celebration in honor of Mrs. Linda Maffey, troop committee member. Gifts were presented to Mrs. Kurth and Mrs. Maffey, in appreciation of valuable services to the troop, and refreshments served with the help of Mrs. Frieda Feig.

Church Book Tea

A book tea for the benefit of the Community Church Bazaar, will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles M. Cormack, 6-B Ridge Road, Wednesday, November 13 from 3 to 5 p.m.

Anyone interested is cordially invited. It is requested that each guest bring a book, new or old, to the tea. The books will then be sold at the Bazaar in December.

AVC Dance Plans

Final plans for the Thanksgiving dance, November 23, sponsored by the local chapter of the American Veterans Committee and Auxiliary, were made at the last Auxiliary meeting. Bradley Clay and his Minute Men will play for dancing from 9 to 12. Following the fall motif the auditorium of the Center School will be decorated with brightly colored leaves, corn shocks and pumpkins. Refreshments of cider and doughnuts, cokes and hot dogs will be offered. The drawing for the AVC raffle will be held during the evening.

Raffle tickets can be obtained from any AVC member.

Edith Nicholas resigned as chairman of the American Veterans Committee Auxiliary at the group's last meeting due to the press of other activities and June Ringel was elected as her successor.

Ann Braund spoke about organizing neighborhood CARE plans after the business session.

All wives of veterans are invited to attend the auxiliary meetings which are held the last Monday of every month.

New Play Casting

A tentative cast was chosen last Friday night for the Greenbelt Theater Group's next production, "Watch on the Rhine." The cast, as announced by director Nat Schein includes Sherry Locklear, Beverley Fonda, Roy Volberding, Edith Nicholas, Jules Pines, Edith White, Bob Broadbent, Linda Solomon, and Wallace Sherertz. Two parts are still open: That of a young boy, and one of an older lady. Anyone who is interested in working with stage properties and makeup is invited to join the group any Friday evening, at 8:30 p.m. in the arts and crafts room of the center school.

The group also decided to produce a Christmas play for children as a benefit for the Co-op nursery school.

Legion Boys Beat

Landover 12 To 0

Greenbelt Legion Boys football team defeated the Landover Hills Boys Club last Sunday by a score of 12 to 0, redeeming the defeat they suffered the previous week. The touchdowns were made by Cragin and Wolfe, the first one coming on a succession of line drives from the 50-yard line, during the second quarter. In the third quarter, after many hard drives the locals were penalized from the 5-yard line back to the 20. However, this did not daunt them as Cragin passed to Wolfe for the score.

Next Monday, Armistice Day, the local team plays host to the Berwyn Bearcats in a benefit game, the proceeds going to help pay the expenses of an injured player. Berwyn has not been defeated and there is strong feeling between these teams as the Legion boys were defeated in a game earlier in the season and they want to avenge the defeat.

Every time the team wins a game the players are invited by Jack Fruchtmann, manager of the Greenbelt Theatre, to see the current movie as his guests.

According to Coach Hugh Hawkins, Jack Hofstetter, who was injured while playing last Sunday, was taken to the Health Center by Officer Green. An X-ray indicated that he had sprained the ligaments of his leg, and he will be unable to play for a couple of weeks. Eddie Boyer, who broke his leg in the game the previous week, is on the mend.

Local Soccer Team Wins County Title

On Friday, November 1, the Greenbelt High School soccer team defeated Hyattsville High to win the Prince Georges County Class C championship, and also clinched their invitation to the state tournament which is to be held in Baltimore starting November 8. To date the team has won seven games, lost one and tied one.

Scoring honors in Friday's game were divided among Bill Goodall, Bob Scott, and a member of the Hyattsville squad who accidentally kicked the ball through his own goal. During the last minutes of the game Bob Ford, a Hyattsville player, suffered a cruel head injury and was carried off the field in a semi-conscious condition. The game ended a few minutes later with Greenbelt winning 3 to 1.

Men's, Women's Gym

A final call for all softball and baseball uniforms is being issued. Will those who still have uniforms please return them to the Recreation Office on or before Men's Gym next Thursday, November 14.

There will be no Women's Gym and no Men's Gym on November 20 and 21 because of the high school play being held those nights.

Men's gym has been well attended. Four more names have been added to the basketball league. J. Miller and B. Daniels joined Linderman's team, Frank Bauer signed up with Cookson's squad and Bill Zerwick completes Bill Holloway's basket men. Anyone still interested may join the league by contacting Ben Goldfaden at the Recreation Office or by coming to men's gym on Thursday nights.

Women's gym has also had a good turnout. Special attention has been given these past few Wednesday nights to beginning techniques of table tennis and badminton. A volley ball tournament has been drawn up which begins playing November 6 with Frances Holloway's team meeting Rosetta Raduaza's and Dorothy Palmer-ton's squad taking on Betty Ann Dickson's team.

GCS Meat Policy Leaves It To Buyers To Set Prices According To Demand

By ELISA EAST

In an interview Monday on the current consumer campaign to bring meat prices down, this statement of policy was given to the Cooperator by GCS general manager Sam Ashelman:

"GCS is fully cooperating with organized consumer groups in efforts to secure reductions in meat prices. We suggest that shoppers pass up the expensive meats, those obviously out of line. There are many cheaper cuts that will serve nutritional needs until prices are in line with what we all as consumers can afford to pay.

"Although we encourage consumers to buy only the less expensive cuts, we at the same time believe it is our job to carry a reasonable line of meats. It is not the job of GCS to arbitrarily say that shoppers shall not have meat above 60c per pound, or any other price. We will supply according to what the consumers want. At the same time, we will not charge more than the normal markup, and will keep in line with chain store prices."

(Although GCS is backing the drive, through the Potomac Cooperative Federation, it did not join in the "no meat over 60c a pound" statement which the Rochdale stores made in an ad appearing in Saturday's Washington Post. Since this was an independent decision of the Rochdale stores, no effort was made to include GCS in this action.)

Mr. Ashelman pointed out that, since the lower-priced cuts are proportionately as much out of line as the more expensive ones, consumers can do as much to lower prices by purchasing only necessary items as by trying to place an arbitrary price-limit on purchases.

Dan Livingston, meat manager, reports a 50% drop in purchases of expensive cuts of meat, although people have bought just as much meat as usual. Chuck roasts, for instance, sold rapidly at 45c, two cents over the former OPA ceiling. Lard, at 60c a pound, sold slowly, while chipped beef at $1.20 a pound went a quarter-pound at a time in most cases.

Up to Tuesday more than 500 signatures had been obtained locally on the pledge which will be sent to the American Meat Institute when completed, along with those of other area groups, refusing to pay more than 60c a pound for meat. Workers will be on hand all day tomorrow to take signatures and distribute publicity on the campaign, which will be followed soon by a mass protest meeting. Local organizations sponsoring the drive are GCS (through the Potomac Cooperative Federation), the Citizens' Association, AVC and Auxiliary, and UPWA. Rose Rothchild, president of the local UPWA auxiliary, is in charge of the local meat-price campaign, the first in a series of nationwide efforts to enroll consumers in a strike against high prices.

Youth Building Showing Progress

A tour of the youth center building last Sunday showed great progress made in strengthening the structure and patching up the walls, roof and flooring. The moving operation, completed about three weeks ago, had left each section damaged to some extent. Federal carpenters have it sealed now against the weather, and other workers, skilled and amateur, will soon begin replacing insulation, patching wallboard, and stacking lumber.

The plan is for high school boys to take a hand after school hours and for adults to put in weekend time to get the place ready for professional carpenters to finish up.

Before the trained workers can be employed, however, the ways and means committee headed by Jack Fruchtman has the job of raising the $1500 needed to complete the conversion of the one-time temporary administration building to a youth center.

Plans drawn up call for the use of the largest room, approximately 18' by 47' which can be divided by sliding doors, for social and recreation purposes. Another large room may be reserved for young men returned from service. A kitchen, 9' x 16', has been planned with a wide serving counter accessible from the main room.

Employees Reject Insurance Change

At a special meeting held last week, the GCS Employees' Association heard Anthony Madden, Ohio Farm Bureau insurance agent, explain the various types of insurance open to the group, with a view to substituting some type of group insurance for the present bonus plan which has been in operation for some time.

It was voted to continue with the bonus for this year, and to consider group insurance for next year, since discontinuance of the bonus at the present time would be unfair to those who have come to count on it. Part-time employees would not be covered by group insurance.

This organization, one of the busiest in Greenbelt, has held at least six "monthly" meetings since June, including two social affairs, a picnic at the lake, and a Halloween party, complete with music, games and refreshments, at the Legion Home. Just last week, it added to its other activities a weekly mimeographed newspaper for distribution to all GCS employees.

The Association is the brain child of "Pappy" Hawkins, Tom Okazaki and Si Pearson, who felt some way of acquainting GCS employees and their families with each other was needed. "Many of our employees," said Pappy, "did not even know who the general manager is."

Membership is open to all GCS employees, whether full or part time; 75% of them have already joined. Managers may belong, but cannot hold office. Officers of the organization, elected for one year, are: president, Jim Mathers; vice-president, John Brown; treasurer, Bob Broadbent; secretary, Martha Kimball. Hugh Hawkins, Elmer Faulkner and Rachel Garner make up the social committee, and Edna Schaeffer and Ruth Watson act as a committee to send flowers and otherwise cheer up those who are sick.

Local Sweet Teeth Can Stop Aching

The first big shipment of sugar in weeks, 4800 pounds of it, hit Greenbelt Monday. Rumors of the sweet stuff's advent had spread abroad Saturday, and at 11 a.m. that day and most of Monday, knots of people waited in the center.

By 2:30 Monday afternoon the center was a beehive of activity. Women and children were everywhere—in all the stores and on all available benches. Finally at 4 p.m. the word was passed: "The sugar is here." A special cash register was set up at the end of the food store and by 4:30 the line curved back to the theatre and from there around the drug store nearly as far as the bus stop. The ladies were paying 43c per five pounds, a rise of 10c over the pre-war price.

Greenbelt police chief Panagoulis and Officer Belton were on hand to prevent disorder; but the crowd was in a holiday mood and very well-behaved.

Up at the north-end store, Manager Mike Watson, was forced to close the doors, after close to 80 people had crowded their way into the building.

Mrs. Charlotte Walsh of 58-D Ridge Road, is leaving tomorrow with her two children for Chicago, where they will stay until after Thanksgiving.

On Tuesday evening Peggy and Al Arness, and Peggy and Joe Bargus, former residents of Greenbelt, dropped in to visit the Abe Chasanows of 11-T Ridge Road. The two couples are now residents of Herndon, Virginia.

OUR NEIGHBORS

By DOROTHY MCGEE

"A sign! A sign! My kingdom for a sign!" might well be the wail, paraphrasing Shakespeare, of the harassed clerks in the tobacco store who are constantly being asked the direction to the drugstore, and the equally harassed clerks in the drugstore who answers as to the whereabouts of the tobacco store. Men seeking a haircut often find themselves timidly opening the door of the beauty shop. Of course, there are old timers who can find their way about town blindfolded; but after all, there are a great many newcomers and visitors also, who are somewhat bewildered by the absence of signs. Doubtless, signs and sign makers are scarce. Perhaps a little window-dressing would do the trick—some copies of the police gazette in the barber shop's window or a red and white candy-striped pole outside. Some placards in the beauty shop's window displaying the latest in ladies' coiffures might tell the men that this is not the place for a shave and some bay rum. If cigar store Indians were not almost priceless antiques, a wood Indian would be just the thing outside the tobacco store. Or maybe it would be best of all just to get some signs, nice, plain signs that would end the confusion.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Miettunen, their son, Rafael, and daughter Lucile, of 9-Q Research Research Road, left Greenbelt last Friday, to take up their residence in Oklahoma, where Mr. Miettunen has been appointed Administrative Assistant to the Supervising Engineer of the Interior Department's Petroleum Experiment Station. Mr. and Mrs. Miettunen wish to take this opportunity to say goodbye to their friends here and to thank them for their many kindnesses and courtesies.

Former Greenbelter and Cooperator staff member, John Vachon is just back from Poland, where in his capacity as UNRRA photographer he took pictures of war-devastated homes and children. Some of the pictures recently appeared in the New York paper, "PM."

Mahlon Eshbaugh, S 1/C, 33-M Ridge Road, is serving with the Fleet Home Town News Center, Great Lakes, Illinois, assigned to the photography laboratory.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Lachman, of 12-A Plateau Place, had as their house guest last week, Mr. Lachman's mother, Mrs. Helen Bosler of Providence, R.I.

At least two Greenbelt couples were cheering in Baltimore last Saturday at the Navy-Notre Dame game. Mr. and Mrs. William Rupert and Mr. and Mrs. William Sansone were among the spectators at the game.

Chief Radio Electrician Bill Richards is home with his family on a thirty-day furlough from Cuba, where he has been stationed for several months. He came by way of Texas where his mother has been seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Callanan, 2-C Laurel Hill, are happy to announce the birth of their second son, Kevin, on October 31.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Rubin, 11-F Hillside Road, are spending a two weeks' vacation with relatives in New Jersey.

Edward Boyer, 2-D Research Road, injured his knee in a football game, and has been in Leland Memorial Hospital for several days. He is expected home this weekend.

There was a surprise stork shower given last night for Mrs. Joseph Kosisky by Mrs. Edward Brooks at 12-A Hillside. Mrs. Kosisky came from England as a war bride and has been making her home with her husband's parents. She and her husband have just moved into their own apartment.

Harry Weidberg, of 14-Z-2 Laurel Hill, has been recently admitted to the bar in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Vern Schwab, the former Mary Louise Lemire, is extending her visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Lemire, 58-A Crescent Road. Vern and Mary Louise are both Greenbelt High School graduates. Mr. Schwab was graduated from St. John's in Annapolis and is now in Cambridge, Mass., continuing his studies at Harvard University. In between times he is hunting a house and hopes to have his wife and baby Stephen, join him soon.
